This creates a smooth uniform surface

5 Color changes When changing colors secure the end of the old thread and begin the new thread on the back ensuring no loose ends are visible on the front

6 Finishing Once your stitching is complete carefully remove the fabric from the hoop Trim any loose ends on the back and gently wash your piece if desired to remove any water soluble marking pen

Practical Example A Simple Corredino Flower Lets create a small simple flower using corredino Well use five stitches to create a single petal Imagine a small X shape that is repeated 5 times to make the petal Using a single colour of floss and a high count Aida fabric you can create a single petal that looks surprisingly detailed due to the small size of the cross stitches Repeat this many times with multiple colours to create a vibrant flower

Advanced Techniques Backstitching Adding backstitching to outline shapes provides crisp lines and further enhances the detail

French Knots Tiny French knots can add highlights and texture to your design such as the center of a flower

HalfStitches Use halfstitches for shading and creating subtle gradients

3 Visual Description of a Corredino Project Imagine a vibrant still life of lemons meticulously rendered in various shades of yellow and green The skin of each lemon is subtly textured using varied stitch densities creating a threedimensional effect The leaves a deep emerald green are layered with carefully placed stitches to depict their veins and subtle shadows The overall effect is not just crossstitch its a miniature painting woven with thread
